I'm a native Texan growing up on Farms and Ranches in the Central and West Texas areas with a life long passion for nature and agriculture.

I moved to the DFW area in the late 80's and lived in Rockwall for the past 20 years and recently relocated to Ft. Worth which is where I now call home.

I've been officially involved in the wine industry since 2009 but developed a love for wine since 1995 in great thanks to my then in-laws who traveled to France twice a year to experience and buy the French wines. They would then share them with us and educate us on all things regarding fine French wines as well as many other types and kinds of wines.

I've traveled to wineries throughout most of Texas, Napa and Washington as well as experienced the wines while in Monte Carlo, Italy and Paris and I'm extremely proud of how successful our Texas wines have become over the last 10 years.

I accidentally fell in love with the wine industry for many reasons but some fall in the categories of my love for the art, creativity, science and hard work that goes into each bottle of wine that is made by kind, caring, loving and passionate people.

Wine brings people together, a bottle, a glass and good friends whether it's a glass of your favorite red on a cool night or your favorite white wine by the pool during our hot Texas summers.

I'm Grass roots wine educated, always seeking knowledge from the wine makers, and an aspiring Sommelier and Vintner.
